Knockdown of Spotted Wing Drosophila Adults

Spotted wing drosophila (SWD) has been found infesting ripening cherry, raspberry, blackberry, blueberry and strawberry crops. It has also been observed attacking other soft-flesh fruit, such as boysenberry, varieties of Japanese plums, plumcots and nectarines. Danitol provides SWD adult female control.

Spotted Wing Drosophila Adult Female Control

Adult females lay eggs in ripening fruit and the larvae cannot be controlled. You need to control the female before she lays her eggs in the marketable, high-value fruit.
